Australasia's best croupier ready to deal with world's finest players at major poker tournaments

18 January 2020

As The Star Gold Coast prepares to host two of the world's most coveted poker tournaments this month, one of its own has already won the right to deal with the best poker players on the planet.

The Star Gold Coast's Lewis Hopkins, 24, was crowned the '2019 Australasian Croupier Champion' in November after a three-day competition in Perth where he competed against the finest croupiers from 13 casinos across Australia, New Zealand, Vanuatu, and Singapore including Marina Bay Sands.

The talented dealer said he was excited to work at the upcoming 'Australian Poker Open' and 'Super High Roller Bowl Australia' events, starting 25 January and continuing for 11 days.

After being held in destinations including China and the UK, the high-stakes events are coming to Australia for the first time in partnership with World Poker Tour® (WPT®) and Poker Central.

"It's a great feeling to have the chance to be part of these incredible international tournaments and be dealing for some of the world's most professional and elite poker players," Mr Hopkins said.

"As a croupier, our job is to provide the best entertainment experience no matter who is playing, but you can't help but get excited when you know the high calibre of these events and the players coming to town.

"Being world's best, the players are going to expect more in our guest service, our chip work, our speed, game knowledge and control, and our overall efforts to make sure that they are having a great time with us.

"Last year's WPT tournament was a great opportunity to mix with world-class players like Aussie poker players Joe Hachem and Alex Lynskey, as well as poker fans and sporting greats like Shane Warne.

"It was a huge buzz each day we came into work and it has provided a solid training ground for these next two major poker tournaments where we will see a higher level of skill and mastery – the stakes are going to be high and I can't wait to see how it all unfolds!"

The 'Australian Poker Open' will run for eight days from Saturday 25 January, while 'Super High Roller Bowl Australia' – with buy-ins of $250,000 – will be contested over three days from Sunday 2 February.

The Super High Roller Bowl Australia will see poker professionals playing for a purse of around $5 million, making it one of the richest three-day tournaments in the world.

Mr Hopkins won the 2019 Australasian Croupier Championship after competing against the top 20 croupiers across the region.

He was challenged and judged in technical ability, game craft, and guest service in the classic games of American Roulette, Blackjack, and Baccarat.

“I’ve been working in the gaming industry since 2016, where I started at a casino in New Zealand before moving to the Gold Coast more than two years ago to take up a croupier role at The Star Gold Coast,” Mr Hopkins said.

“I love what I do – and one day I hope to move into a gaming operations management role.

“But it’s not just about the games we help facilitate, it’s about the interaction with different people from all walks of life and ensuring we provide exceptional guest service no matter who they are.

“I didn’t expect to win the Australasian Croupier Championship because the field of croupiers was so high – I was up against the best dealers from some of the largest casinos in the world including Marina Bay Sands.”

The Star Gold Coast COO Jessica Mellor said she was proud to see one of the property’s many talented and skilful croupiers take out the Australasian title.

“Lewis is an exceptional croupier with excellent guest service skills and we’re so proud of him for bringing the Australasian title home to the Gold Coast,” Ms Mellor said.

“Lewis was selected to compete in the championship after undergoing rigorous judging internally against 11 other croupiers from across our property – with only two selected for the Australasian Croupier Championship.

“We have been sending croupiers to this competition since it was established in 2002 by TCS John Huxley, a leading manufacturer and supplier of gaming solutions and services.

“Lewis is our fourth croupier to have won this prestigious competition, with The Star Gold Coast previously winning the championship in 2012, 2013, and 2014.

“To win the overall title is an incredible achievement, and a real inspiration to the rest of our team, especially as we head into ‘Australian Poker Open’ and ‘Super High Roller Bowl Australia,’ where around 50 croupiers and floor managers will be involved in running these tournaments alone.

“Staging these events – which are attracting players from all around the world – requires preparation and teamwork and we are looking forward to making sure our people and our property continues to shine.

“The Star is the centre for thrilling entertainment on the Gold Coast, with our state-of-the-art poker venue delivering the best poker experience in Queensland and helping position us as the home of poker in the country.

“Introducing these tournaments to Australia for the first time only helps strengthens our reputation for staging major world-class events.”

About The Star Gold Coast

Since its inception in 1985, The Star Gold Coast has become the coastal city's most iconic tourism and entertainment destination and today welcomes around 3.5 million visitors a year through its doors. Owned and operated by The Star Entertainment Group, the property has continued to evolve significantly since embarking on an extraordinary transformation, and has become home to some of the nation's biggest events including the first World Poker Tour in Australia. Along with its consortium partners, the company is currently building a $400 million, 53-storey first mixed-use tower at The Star Gold Coast, which will bring the internationally-acclaimed Dorsett hotel brand to Australia for the first time when it opens around 2022. Further, the partners have approval for an additional $2 billion-plus masterplan for The Star Gold Coast, which includes an additional four towers and resort amenities.
