

HOW TO PLAY

SIC BO

According to gaming legend, Sic Bo has been played on the port of Shanghai for hundreds of years. The modern casino version of the ancient Chinese game combines a long tradition with the latest electronics.

Sic Bo has been made popular by its fast-paced play and wide range of betting options and payout odds.

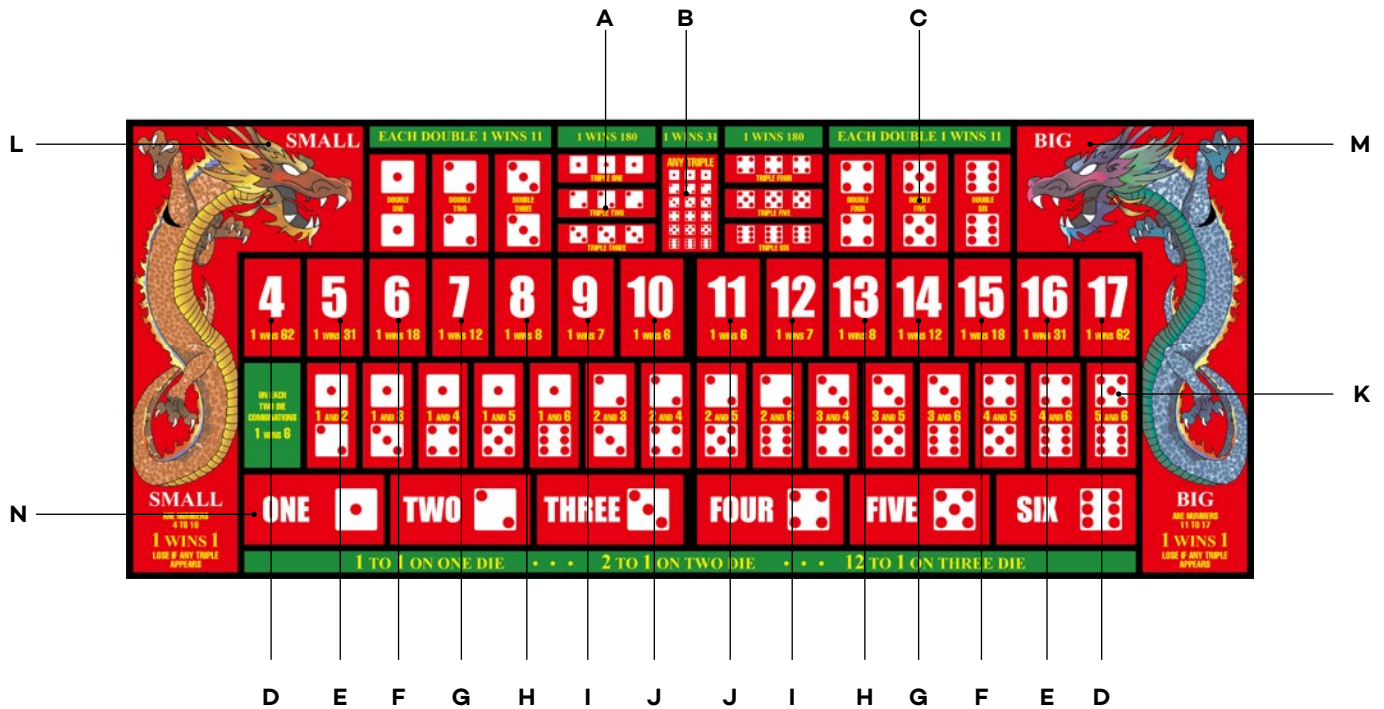

THE AIM OF THE GAME

Sic Bo is played with three dice contained within a tumbler. The aim of the game is simply to predict the numbers or combinations that will be revealed by the tumbling of the dice.

With numerous betting options and payout odds, Sic Bo offers a wide range of ways to win - from bets that pay even money, to long shots that pay big money.

ELECTRONIC TERMINAL PLAY

Sic Bo is able to be played on an Electronic Terminal. The help menu on the terminal displays player instructions and information for playing Sic Bo on an Electronic Terminal.

SIC-BO WITH AN AUTOMATIC TUMBLER

To commence a new game, the Dealer covers the tumbler and tumbles the dice. The table layout lights begin to flash and the Dealer calls for Players to place their bets.

To place your bets, simply position your chips clearly within the box containing the number or combination of your choice. The Dealer will call "no more bets" before lifting the cover of the tumbler to reveal the dice.

The Dealer then announces the dice values and total, and the winning bets are illuminated on the table.

THE RANGE OF BETS IN SIC BO

THE ODDS OF WINNING

In Sic Bo three dice are tumbled and Players try to predict various combinations, totals and outcomes. House margins for each type of bet vary from 2.8% (big, small or combinations of two dice) to 16.2% for a specific triple. Sic Bo is a game of chance so there are no betting strategies to reduce these margins.
